N account of the Manuscript from which the following Tracts are now, for the first time, printed, will be found in the Introduction to a work published some years ago, under the superintendence of the Editor of the present Volume, by the Camden Society of London. A complete Catalogue of the contents of the MS. has there been given; and notices of the three

An Apology
for Lollard
Doctrines, attributed to Wycliffe, with an Introduction
and Notes.
London,
1842, 4to.

Treatises now presented to the reader will be found Articles X. XI. and XV. of that Catalogue.

The first of them, the tract On the Church and its Members, seems, beyond all doubt, to be a genuine work of John Wycklyffe, and has been quoted as such both by his friends and enemies. In the “Harborough for faithful Subjects,” printed at Strasburgh, in 1539, by John Aylmer, a violent attack on the Temporalities of the Bishops is concluded by the following wish: “I would our country man VVicliche's boke whych he wrote De Ecclesia were in print, and there shoulde you see that your wrinches and cavillations be nothing worthe. It was my chance to happen of it in ones hand that brought it out of Bohemia."

Aylmer afterwards became a Bishop himself, and then, as honest John Stripe informs us, "he changed his mind" respecting Bishops' lands, "and thought the Bishops had as good retain their antient Revenues, as to see them run away with by the Laity,
and little good done with them:" excusing his former opinions by the words of St. Paul, "Cum essem parvulus, loquebar cum parvulis, sapiebam ut parvulus."

Life of Ayl-
mer. Oxford, 1821,
p. 177.

At the same time he probably also changed his mind as to the desirableness of seeing Wycklyffe's Treatise On the Church in print; for the doctrines of that Treatise, although they commended themselves to the exiled Aylmer, did not square with the more enlightened views of the Bishop of London. They differ in fact but little from the dangerous and antisocial principles afterwards put forward by the extreme Puritans of a subsequent age, who maintained that Dominion was founded in Grace, and that the ungodliness of a Sovereign, or of a Bishop, virtually absolved his Subjects from their allegiance.

It is needless to say, that this Tract is not now published with any intention of recommending such principles; but as an historical document, which ought to be studied by all who would thoroughly understand the character of the religious movement which is associated with the name of Wycklyfe.

The work may also serve to prove incidentally the great necessity which existed in the fourteenth century for a Reformation of the Church; and a perusal of it cannot fail to render us thankful that the Reformation, which, by the Providence of God, was afterwards effected, was not conducted on the principles advocated in these writings.

There is good reason to suppose that the Tract, On the Church and its Members, may be, in all probability, the latest of the Reformer's publications; or, at least, it is certain that it must have been written in the last year of Wycklyffe's life. The allusion it contains to the Crusade into Flanders, under the military superintendence of the Bishop of Norwich, for the support of the pretensions of Pope Urban VI., proves it to have been written after the year 1383, when that expedition came to an end. But Wycklyffe, it is well known, died on the last day of the year 1384, being the Feast of Pope Sylvester, having been taken ill at Mass, only two days before, on the Feast of St. Thomas à Becket; which coincidence his enemies

Lewis, Life of Wiclit, .
p. 124. Oxford, 1820.
have not failed to represent as an instance of Divine Judgment against a Reformer who had so often inveighed against both those Prelates, as corrupters of the Church.

The other Treatises contained in the present publication, Of the Apostacy of the Church, and Of Antichrist and his Meynee, contain no such distinct allusions as would enable us to fix the exact Year in which they were composed. They are, however, generally received as the genuine Productions of Wycklyffe; and their agreement in style and subject-matter with the Tract Of the Church, renders it highly probable that they were also written at a very late Period, if not during the last Year, of the Reformer's life.

The present Volume, therefore, containing some of the latest of Wycklyffe's Works, will form a suitable companion and sequel to the Last Age of the Church, published by the Editor some years ago; a Tract which has been generally regarded as the earliest of our Author's writings, and which bears internal evidence of having been composed in the year 1356.

It may be added that in the interval between these productions, notwithstanding that our Author had made himself sufficiently notorious and obnoxious to the ecclesiastical authorities of that day by his theological and political opinions, he was, nevertheless, promoted to be the Head of a House in Oxford: he was presented to more than one Benefice with cure of souls: he was raised in the University to the Degree of Doctor of Divinity; in which capacity he put forward his opinions boldly in public Lectures in the Schools; and, finally, notwithstanding all the efforts made to crush him, he died in full communion with the Church, a beneficed Clergyman of the Church of England.

This is not the place to enter at any length into the history of Wycklyffe's life, or of the various controversies, religious and political, in which he was engaged; but it may perhaps be convenient to the Reader to have here the dates of our Author's principal preferments in the University and in the Church. He was made Warden, or Master, of Baliol Hall (as it was then called) in 1360; Rector of Fylingham in 1361; Warden of Canterbury Hall in 1365; Rector of Lutgurshall in 1368; Doctor of Divinity in 1372; and finally, in 1375, he was presented by the Crown to the Prebend of Aust, and to the Rectory of Lutterworth, in which preferment he died.

apostasye of prestis; pre maner of prestis fallen in pis synne; pe firste is peple of priuat religioun/ pe secunde is pe multitude of emperours prelatis/ pe thirdre is prestis wiþoute pise two firste. We shal suppose of our bialeue pat elche man pat is ordeyned of God to be dampned is apostata to iugement of God/ as pe riȝt resoun shewis of pe apostasie. And ȝif apostasie is stondyng biȝynde/ hou myche stondyng biȝynde ilche sich pat shal be dampned/ mor pan Goddis derlyng pat shal afterward be saued wiȝliche/ al ȝif he semer greuousliche biȝynde for pe tym. Ferthermor we shal suppose pat bodylische abyte or wantyng perof makyn not men religiose nepper apostataes/ al ȝif pep semen siche bi iugement of men; for oonliche charite pat swip it makip men religiose or of Cristis ordre. But it is knowen bi lawe of our God pat alle pes bodisliche signes ben straunge fro charite/ for charite stondip in soule & not in siche signes. But Lord whever weddyng wip siche signes helpip to holde religioun of Crist/ & loue hym of hert/ syp it is certeyn pat Cristis religioun stondip in loue of God of al our herte. And it semep pat siche signes drabwen fro loue of Cristi po pat setten so meche trist in hem/ & bynden hem to kepe perpetually; for pep needen a man to take heede to sensible yng/ but heede to sensible yng wipdrawip fro God. Also oblisshyng of men bnscreep hem to God. But it is greet oblisshyng to be bonde to perpetual

NOTES.

Notes.

---

S the foregoing Tracts have been edited from a single MS., in the hope of drawing attention to the historical importance of Wylye's writings, no attempt will be made to settle doubtful readings in the text. The Editor does not aim at producing a complete edition, and has therefore laboured only to represent with accuracy the text of the Dublin MS.

The following notes will be confined to the verification of the author's quotations, and to such explanations of obscure words or allusions as are necessary for rendering the text intelligible to an ordinary reader. The Glossary, it is hoped, will give some additional assistance in this latter object.

This tripartite division of the Church, and the argument founded on it, contains the fundamental error committed by Wycliffe and his followers, which infected and distorted their whole theology. It will be observed that our author denies, in express terms, that the reprobate, during their lifetime on earth, can in any sense be considered members of the Church; for, he argues, “Christ vouchsafeth to call the Church His Spouse,” but “cursed men he clepeth fiends;” therefore if such men were members of the Church, we should be forced to infer

p. iv. v.

that “Christ hath wedded the fiend,” contrary to what St. Paul asserts, “that Christ communeth not with Belial.”

From this doctrine, the inference is drawn that “every member of holy Church shall be saved with Christ;” although so long as we be militant here, we never can know whether we be members of holy Church or no.

This fundamental position of Wycliffe's theology must be carefully borne in mind, if we would fully understand his system; especially as various forms of the same error are still prevalent, and a modern reader, who is not a professional Divine, may not at first sight be able to detect all the bearings and consequences of the doctrine.

It is the prerogative of the New Jerusalem that into her “there shall in nowise enter any- Rev. xxi.
thing that defileth;” but in the Church now 27. militant on earth, tares as well as wheat are found, and it is the will of God that both shall grow there together, until the harvest. It is the great and fearful aggravation of the sin of the reprobate, that they are corrupt members of Christ; that they knew their Lord's will, but did it not; that they were made members of Christ in baptism, and having been once enlightened, tasting of the heavenly gift, and made partakers of the Holy Ghost, did nevertheless fall away, and in their lives and conversation deny the Lord that bought them. Thus S. Jerome, commenting on Eph. i. 22, says: “Quomodo enim caput plurima sibi habet membra subjecta, e quibus sunt nonnulla vitiosa et debilia, ita et Dominus noster JESUS CHRISTUS, quem sit Caput ecclesiae, habet membra eos omnes, qui in ecclesia congregantur, tam sanctos videlicet, quam peccatores; sed sanctos voluntate, peccatores vero sibi necessitate subjectos.”

The allusion here is probably to Prov. xxx. 18, 19: “ *Tria sunt difficultia mihi, et quartum penitus ignoro. In the Articuli Johannis Wiclefi in Concil. Constant. damnati (sect. Contra Papam), we find the following : " Papa et Cardinales non fuerunt ordinati a Domino, sed per Diabolum introducti. In cuius signum nomen Papæ vel Cardinalium non inseritur in Scriptura, sed ut Chronicantes referunt, quando venenum effusum est in ecclesiam, est inventum." And again, another of the condemned articles is, " Certum videtur ex Chronicis, quod non a Christo, sed a Cæsare Constantino, Romanus episcopus accepit, vel potius usurparit potestatem." See also Artic. Wiclefi xlv., of which Art. xxxiii. is as follows : " Sylvester Papa et Constantinus Imperator erraverunt, Ecclesiam dilando."

The allusion to the “Cronyklis,” and the statement that the endowment of the Church by the Emperor was the suggestion of the Devil, are explained by the following passage in the Chronicle of Thomas Sprott: “A. iii. c. xv.” [i. e. Ed. Hearne, A. D. 315] “Constantinus baptizatur a Sancto Sylvestro, et tum ditavit Ecclesiam Romanam libertatibus, praediis, et possessionibus, et dedit sedem suam imperialem Sancto Petro, et suis successoribus. Et illo tempore Dyabolus in aere volando clamavit, Hodie venenum ecclesiis Dei infusum est.” This story is also alluded to by Johannes de Parisii, in his book De potest. regia et papali, Ap. Gol- cap. xxii. Speaking of the donation of Constantine, he says: “Quod vero Deo displicerit ex hoc dast. Mo- sumitur argumentum, quod legitur in vita B. Syl- narch. S. Rom. Imp. vestri Papæ, quod in donatione illa audita est vox tom. ii. p. angelorum, dicentium in aere, Hodie in Ecclesia 140. venenum effusum est.”

þat he is ebene wip þe manhed of Crist.

Decretal.
lib. i. tit. vii.
c. 3.

Our author here probably refers to the well-known passage of the Canon law, where Pope Innocent III. says of the Roman Pontiff, “qui non puri hominis, sed veri Dei vicem gerit in terris.” Upon which the Gloss remarks: “unde dicitur habere cœleste arbitrium; et ideo etiam naturam rerum immutat, substantialia unius rei applicando alii; de nullo potest aliquid facere; et sententiam que nulla est facit aliquam; quia in his, quæ vult, ei est pro ratione voluntas; nec est qui ei dicat, cur ita facis? Ipse enim potest supra jus dispensare. Idem de injustitia potest facere justitiam, corrigendo jura, et mutando; et plenitudinem obtinet potestatis.”

With this doctrine before him, thus taught authoritatively, Wycliffe might very fairly complain that “some men” attribute to the Pope the power of doing on earth “whatever him liketh.”

Another Gloss, on the same passage, explains, that although the Pope is Vice-God, veri Dei vicem gerit, he is also Vice-Man, i. e. Vice-Christ; vicem gerit veri hominis, qui etiam aliquid est secundum quod homo, et est verus Deus, et verus homo. This is the doctrine to which our author seems to allude to when he says that some men make the Pope “even with,” or equal to, “the manhood of Christ.”

For the numerous titles of honour which have been given to the Roman Pontiff, by various authorities, the reader may consult Brovius, Pontifex Romanus, pp. 50, sq. Col. Agripp. 1619. Amongst others, this author quotes Wycliffe himself, as having given the Pope the title of summus Christi Vicarius in terris, in his Epist. to Urban VI., ap. Fox. Rerum gestar. in Eccl. Comment., lib. i. p. 16. Basil. 1559.

only in oo siche prest.

This passage must have been written subsequently to the year 1379, when the great schism between the rival Popes Urban VI. and Clement VII. began. One of the Articles condemned in the Council of Constance, in the section De schismate in ecclesia Dei, seems to have been taken from the words before us: "Deus non sinens apostema illud, sc. Papam, in ecclesia sua amplius perdurare, illam putredinem in nido illo diabolico congregatam, divisit in duo capita, ut melius pateat sanies Antichristi."

hou pat Clement left his offiss.

The Liber Pontificalis states that St. Peter, during his lifetime, consecrated two bishops,

Linus and Cletus, to assist him in the sacerdotal part of his functions: “qui præsentiali-ter omne ministerium sacerdotale in urbe Roma populo, vel supervenientibus exhiberent. Beatus autem Petrus orationi et prædicationi populos erudiens vacabat.” But that afterwards, when he found the day of his death approaching, he consecrated St. Clement, and gave to him the entire pastoral care and episcopal government of his see. “Petrus vero sentiens diem mortis sibi imminere, beatum Clementem episcopum consecravit, eique suam cathedram vel ecclesiam omnem disponendam commisit, dicens; sicut mihi potestas gubernandi tradita est a Domino meo JESU Christo, ligandi solvendique; ita et ego tibi committo, ut ordinans dispositores diversarum causarum, per quos actus ecclesiastici propagentur. Et tu minime curis seculi deditus reperiaris: sed solummodo orationi et prædicationi stude vacare.” And see the same story in

Lib. Pontif.
(ed. Vigno-lio), in S.
Petr. c. iii.
p. 7.

Ibid. c. v.

the spurious (although ancient) Epistle of Clement to St. James of Jerusalem, ap. Cotelerii Patres Apostol. tom. i. p. 617.

The Liber Pontificalis makes Clement to have succeeded A. D. 67, and to have sat 9 years 2 months and 12 days; i. e. until A. D. 76, when he abdicated, or, as our author expresses it, "left his office," 24 years before his death; for the same authority places his martyrdom in the third year of Trajan, or A. D. 100.

From these facts Wycliffe infers that the apostolic bishops of Rome, St. Peter and St. Clement, made no claim to be "Head of holy Church," but only sought "how they might meekly serve it." For when St. Peter, during his lifetime, committed his whole authority to St. Clement, and when Clement retired from his see, committing his office to others, it is evident they had no idea of a peculiar prerogative existing in the bishop of Rome, as the sole Vicar of Christ; “and that man is out of reason that troweth that Clement in Peter’s time was more than John Evangelist, or any Apostle that lived with him.”

This is one of the articles of Wycliffe condemned in the Council of Constance (c. contra Papam): “Papa Clemens cum ceteris adjutoribus in fide non fuerunt Papæ sed Dei adjutores, ad ædificandam ecclesiam Domini JESU Christi.”

aſtir ye monkis camen ye chanouns.

By monks Wycliffe generally means those who lived under the rule of St. Benedict; by canons, he means the Canons regular of St. Augustine; and by freres or friars, the mendicant orders. This will appear from the following passage of his Tract, De Christo et Antichristo:

Cit. ap. Tho. " Quidam fideles eliciunt quod in militante ecclesia debet esse unica Secta Domini IESU, et per consequens quatuor Sectæ, post Sectam Christi per Diabolum introductæ, debent cessare gratia unitatis Ecclesiæ militantis. Sunt autem istæ quatuor Sectæ, ut saepe dictum est, Clerus Cæsareus, Monachi, Canonici, atque Fratres. Clerus Cæsareus est multitudo Sacerdotum, qui temporali dominio sunt dotati, cuius patronus instabilis dicitur esse Papa; et regula, lex Papalis. Secunda Secta dicitur esse monaci bipartiti, cuius patronus dicitur esse Benedictus, et regula quam ex ejus sententia Beatus Gregorius compilavit. Tertia Secta dicitur esse Canonici, cuius patronus fuit Augustinus; et dicitur, quod sacerdotibus sibi sociis dedit regulam facilem, cum lege Domini concordan-

See also pp. xxvi. lxv. This word occurs in Chaucer, and in the Scottish dialect, as preserved in Jamieson's Etymological Dictionary of the Scottish Language. Not being satisfied with the explanations given of it, the Editor addressed a letter to that most useful publication, Notes and Queries, which was inserted, p. 155 of vol. i. Two different solutions of the difficulty appeared, p. 278 of the same volume.

The first of these, by Mr. John Westby Gibson, supposes the word rehetour to be a duplicate form of Hâteur, an officer in the royal household of France, whose duties Mr. Gibson describes as similar to those of a turn-spit. He therefore explains rehetour thus: “Wycliffe uses it” (he says) “in the sense of a superfluous servant, one whose duties, like the Hâteur’s, were very light indeed.”

The other explanation (from the pen of a learned friend, who writes under the signature of A. N.), supposes the word to come from reheat, to heat over again, and so to cherish, cheer, comfort, refocillate. Hence rehetour, one who ministers to our comfort or convenience; a servant.

The editor is not satisfied with either of these explanations of the word, nor yet with another, which had occurred to himself, viz., that rehetour

Du Cange,
Glossaire
Français, ed.
Henschel.

tom. vii.

may come from the French rehaître, rehe- tier, se rejouir, se refaire: from Haître, joy, health; haître, plaire, rejouir. So that the word would signify one who enjoys himself idly, who lives for pleasure at another man’s expense.

Caymes castelis.

That is, Cain's castles; for in Wycliffe's time the proper name Cain appears to have been commonly corrupted into Caim. So in the Wycliffe version of the New Testament, Heb. xi. 4, “Abel offrid a myche more sacrifice thanne Caim to God.”

The word Caim is formed from the initial letters of the names of the four mendicant orders, Carmelites, Augustinians, Jacobites [or Dominicans, called Jacobites from the Rue S. Jacques in Paris, where their famous convent stood], and Minorites, or Franciscans. Hence “Caim's castles” was a favorite term with our author to designate the magnificent monasteries of these religious orders, with which the world then abounded. This is the explanation he has himself given of the term in the following passage of Trial. lib.

iv. c. 33.

the Triologus: “Alii autem videntes habens mendacii sic laxatas, fingunt quod in Caym fuerunt istae Sectæ quattuor inchoatæ, et sic vox fratris sui Abel ad figurandum horum fratrum malitiam, de terra clamavit ad Dominum. Et in testimonium istorum, quatuor literæ hujus nominis Caym inchoant hos quattuor ordines, secundum ordinem quo finguntur a fratribus incœpisse, ita quod C. Carmelitas figuret, A. Augustinenses, I. Jacobitas, et M. Minores significat, secundum ordinem temporis quem mendaciter sibi fingunt. Sed aggregando suas nequitias videtur mihi, quod licet originaliter in Caym inceperant, cum post solutionem Sathanæ, et per ejus cautelam sub figura sanctitatis, isti hypocritæ sunt excussi, sed quia homo posset in infinitum labi, in ipsis mendaciis fabulosis, ideo supposita harum Sectarum existentia, multa concernentia statum militantis ecclesie sunt notanda.”—p. 155, b.

Harpsfeld censures this, as founded on a false spelling of the name of Cain; and compares it to the objection brought by Porphyry against St. Matthew's Gospel, arising from confounding Joachim and Joachim: “Omnes denique monastice cohortes, nihil aliud illi sunt quam castra Caimitica. Ex qua voce Caim novus noster et tetricor Caim, quatuor mendicantium ordines, propter initiales literas, illis ut putat correspondentes, calumniam instruit. Sed recidit illa ipsa calumnia in ipsius nefarium caput, ut olim similis in Porphyrii, contra Matthæum evangelistam. Cain enim fuit frater Abel, non Caim. Et Porphyrius, propter imperitiam, Joachim et Joakim confudit; falsitatem Matthæo propter genealogiam inurere conatus.”

The pure Anglo-Saxon version of Matt. xxiii. reads, gednehnid pone gnat awey: where the verb drain is substituted for strain. The Versions of Tyndale, 1534; Cranmer, 1539; and Geneva, 1537, all read strayne out; and that of Rheims, 1582, straine; but, by an extraordinary blunder, continued to the present day, the Authorized Version of 1611 has straine at, which is an absurdity.”

men han yem suspect of heresie.

Two reasons for suspecting the friars of heresy are here given: 1. Because "they varien in bileyve of the sacred oost" [i. e. they differ in their belief respecting the manner of the presence of Christ's Body and Blood in the holy Eucharist]. 2. Because they cannot trace the origin of their institution to Christ, and therefore seem rather to be the fulfilment of the Prophecy, that many new sects or heresies shall arise in the latter Times.—p. xlvi. Hence our Author frequently calls them "the new orders," as being of recent origin, and belonging to what he regarded as the last Times of the Church."

In enumerating the differences of opinion amongst Friars, respecting the sacred Host, our Author charges them with maintaining, 1. That the Host is in no manner God's body, which, he says, is contrary to the words of Christ and of the Church. 2. That it is God's body, but in such a sense as to render this admission worth nothing; for some (he says) maintain that it is an accident without substance; if so it is not a body at all (for body implies substance, as well as accidents), and therefore cannot be God's body. Others again evade any definite answer by saying that they believe in this as holy Church believes; but when asked how holy Church believes, and how we should believe, in order to believe as holy Church believes, they answer that the matter is subtle. But if this means anything, it means that the matter is unintelligible and inexplicable, and therefore that God requires us to believe what is unintelligible, which is impossible. Lastly, others say, that the Sacrament is God's Body "as it is in heaven." But the Host that men see bodily broken, and eaten generally of all the people, and moved, as other Hosts, from place to place, cannot be God's Body, as it is in heaven.

In illustration of these accusations against the Friars, see the articles objected against Wydyffe in the Council of Constance, under the head Contra Sacramenta, et primo contra sacra-mentum Corporis Christi.

Apud Orth.
Grat. Fas-
cic. i. pp.

The theological reader, on comparing these statements with the words of our Author, will see clearly that the present doctrine of Transubstantiation was not at that time fully developed in the Christian Church.

Carmes seien.

The “Carmes” or Carmelites pretended that they were founded by the Prophet Elias, who retired to Mount Carmel to escape the persecution of King Ahab. This was denied by other religious orders, and the contest continued until the seventeenth century, when it broke out afresh with such warmth that the Court of Rome deemed it prudent to issue a brief, dated Nov. 29, 1698, enjoining silence on that subject in all time to come. The “Austyns,” or Augustinian Friars, say that they were founded by St. Austin, A. D. 388, and therefore “were many hundred winters before other Friars;” the “Preachers,” or Dominicans, and the “Minors,” or Franciscans, having been confessedly founded in the thirteenth century; and the Carmelites having derived their rule, and (as all but themselves maintained) their origin, from S. Albert of Jerusalem, about A. D. 1209.

It enacts that every adult shall once in the year, at least, confess to his or her proper priest, and once in the year, at least, receive the Holy Communion: Omnis utriusque Sexus fidelis, postquam ad annos discretionis pervenerit, omnia sua solus peccata saltem semel in anno fideliter confiteatur proprio sacerdoti; et injunctam sibi paenitentiam propriis viribus studeat adimplere, suscipiens reverenter, ad minus in Pascha, Eucharistiae Sacramentum.

shrift more shameful.

That is, open or public confession of sins, which is "more shameful," i. e. brings more shame to the penitent. Our author's argument is, that the canon Omnis utriusque Sexus undervalues not only private confession to God, but also public confession before the congregation, which, as being “more shameful,” would be a better test of sincerity; and that it enjoins private confession (although a newly founded ordinance) as necessary to salvation. One of the Articles alleged against our Author, and condemned in the Council of Constance, was this, “Papa non habet potestatem condendi hanc legem: Omnis utriusque Sexus.”

Johannes Andreæ, or Giovanni d'Andrea, was one of the most distinguished canonists of his day, and Professor of Canon Law, first at Pavia, and afterwards at Bologna. One of his daughters (who was herself also a learned canonist, and is said to have occasionally delivered lectures in her father's chair,) was named Novella; and hence he gave the name of Novella to his celebrated Commentaria in Decretales et Sextum. This is the work which our author calls "Ion Andrew or his daughter," and which he accuses the monks of reading, instead of the Bible. Novella was also the name of John Andreas's mother. He died of the great pestilence, July 7, 1348, at Bologna, and was buried in the church of St. Dominick in that city, where his monument is still to be seen.

The other books here mentioned, constituting the body of the Papal laws, are so well known that it is only necessary to state that the five books of Decretals were compiled under Gregory IX.; the Liber sextus Decretalium was added by Boniface VIII, in 1298; and the Clementine Constitutions, in five books, were compiled under Clement V., but published by his successor, John XXII., in 1317, who afterwards added twenty additional constitutions of his own, under the name of Extravagantes. These additions to the code of the Canon Law are frequently noticed and censured by our author, under the name of "the New Law."

hise disciples seyen pat he is God in erpe.

This is a reference, most probably, to the Decretum, Dist. xcvi. c. 7, Satis evidenter, where the following words are quoted from one of the letters of Pope Nicholas I. to the Emperor Michael: “Satis evidenter ostenditur, a seculari potestate nec ligari prorsus, nec solvi posse Pontificem, quem constat a pio principe Constantino . . . Deum appellatum.”

It is possible, however, that our author may refer also to the famous passage in the Commentary of Zenzelinus de Cassanis, on the Extravagants of Pope John XXII., De verb sign. tit. xiv. c. 4, which may have been known to him when writing this tract, as Zenzelinus flourished about 1320: ¶ Declaramus, ad fin.: Credere autem Dominum Deum nostrum Papam, conditorem dictæ decretalis, et istius, sic non potuisse statuere, prout statuit, hæreticum censetur." I quote from the edition of the Corpus juris Canonici, Venet. 1604. Some other editions omit the word Deum, and many Romanist controversialists maintain that the insertion of that word was an error of transcription, or of the press. But this error appears not to have been so regarded in Wycliffe's time. See Mr. Gibbons's learned note on this subject, p. 5 of his edition of Calfhill's Answer to Martiall, published by the Parker Society.

“Cornua fronte gerit, dupliceum signantia legem, Legem quippe novam Christi, vetereinque, figuram.”

That is, although they keep neither the old nor the new law, but only the Pope's law. The words which follow seem to signify: “And if we regard their simony, we shall be of opinion, that they break daily the old and new law, and threaten well nigh to burn the books that God's law is in.”

superaltares.

The superaltare was a portable Altar, or slab of marble to be laid on an Altar, on which the Sacrament was consecrated. Du Cange says that Glossar. in the word was also used to signify the Ciborium, <sup>voce.</sup> or canopy over the Altar.

sip pe fend was loosed.

Alluding to Rev. xx. 7. Our Author seems to count the thousand years from the date of the Apocalypse, which would bring the end of that period, when Satan was loosed, to about the year 1100. The establishment of the Mendicant Orders in the next Century would therefore belong to the period "since the devil was loosed." The meaning of the passage seems to be this: "they," scil. Antichrist and his followers, "send about four sects of beggars," [i. e. the four Mendicant Orders], "which men suppose to be the same that brought in the faith, since the fiend was loosed" [i. e. since the beginning of the thirteenth century], "with power to give pardon, and to sell pardons in whatever way they pleased."

Saxon, wod.

POSTSCRIPT.—It will be observed that the words brollis and moke, in the foregoing Glossary, have been marked as of doubtful meaning. They are printed exactly as they stand in the original MS., but it is possible that a collation of other MSS. might show them to be errors of transcription. The Editor has received the following remarks upon them from a learned friend,—a gentleman better qualified, perhaps, than any scholar now living, to clear up such difficulties. He says:—"I can only conjecture that the word brollis means children. Brol, for child or brat, is used three times by the author of Piers Ploughman, a contemporary of Wycliffe; and it is found also in one of the curious poems ascribed to Michael of Kildare, composed about the year 1300, and contained in MS. Harl. 913, which is printed in the Reliquiae Antiquae, vol. ii. p. 177. Wright, in his edition of Pierce Ploughman, refers brol to an Anglo-Saxon root; but I think he is mistaken, and that it comes from the Norman brol, explained by Roquefort, 'petit et jeune bois,' the young shoots of a tree, a scion." [Hence Brolium, a wood, or woody place; a space enclosed by trees: vid. Du Cange.]

"With respect to the second word [moke], I am unable satisfactorily to help you. If the passage is not corrupt, we ought to trace it in the provincial dialects; but although I have looked at a great many, I cannot find the word in a sense sufficiently clear to explain the passage."
